The Hospitals Auxiliary is offering free tickets to their private benefit showing of "The Search for Alexander" to be held Thursday, March 4 at the De Young Museum.

In the next few issues of Today & Tomorrow, a limerick on a person, place or idea with the name Alexander will be printed, containing clues to identify each Alexander. A free ticket will be issued to anyone who can guess all five limericks.

The first two limericks are:

- Tho he may have been known to philander,
  We're not certain about Alexander,
  He told every belle
  'Be sure not to tell;
  If you do it'll raise all my dander.'
- Alexander would put on great shows,
  From Persepolis back to Byblos.
  Amphitheatres apart,
  Tho he could not take BART,
  He'd wear battle gear all over his clothes.

All answers should be taken to the Auxiliary Office, Room M 180 B (next to Moffitt cashier). Regular benefit tickets at $15 may be purchased at the same location. In addition, free tickets will be given to those opening new memberships of $25 or more (see story inside). For further information contact Eileen Puppo, x4906.

Installation has begun on the Founders Day Clock on the east wing of Millberry Union. The original Seth Thomas clock, a landmark for the UCSF family and the neighboring community, was part of the old Medical School building from 1897 until the building's demolition in 1967. It has been in storage since that time.

Thanks to the Class of 1911, represented by Eldridge J. Best, MD; the Faculty Wives, led by the late Alison J. Saunders; and other alumni, faculty, and donors, the clock will be installed and will begin ticking for the first time in more than a quarter of a century.

Dedication of the clock will occur as one of the many Founders Day activities, Saturday, February 20. See next issues of Today and Tomorrow and UCSF Journal for details.

The Troy C. Daniels Lecturer will be Jeremy R. Knowles, professor of Chemistry at Harvard. He will deliver three lectures while on campus:

- Monday, January 25: "Mechanistic Imperatives for Enzyme Catalysis: Lessons from Phosphotransferases." HSW 301. 4 p.m.
- Wednesday, January 27: "The History of Penicillin: Common Fancies and Less Common Facts." Cole Hall. Noon.
- Friday, January 29: "Targeted Mutagenesis within the Signal Codons of the Beta-Lactamase Gene." S 214. 11 a.m.

The Troy C. Daniels Lectureship is named for the former dean of the School of Pharmacy who has been a leader in determining the course of development of pharmacy and pharmaceutical education for more than 50 years. He first came to UCSF in 1929 as an assistant professor and was dean from 1944 to 1967. The lectureship is sponsored by Barnes-Hind Laboratories.

UC Vice President William B. Fretter recently stated in a response to a Department of Defense request regarding UC Hospitals' participation in the Civilian Military Contingency Hospital System (CMCHS):

"The University of California System-wide Administration and representatives of the University's five teaching hospitals have studied the Civilian-Military Contingency Hospital System (CMCHS) proposal and carefully assessed the hospitals' ability to participate in the program.

"It is our understanding that the intent of CMCHS is to provide a mechanism for civilian hospitals to plan voluntarily for meeting their medical care responsibilities in the event of a national military emergency on a scale exceeding the response capabilities of the military medical system.

"The broad spectrum of services we provide, combined with our responsibility to meet the needs of patients sponsored by public programs, leads to a high activity level (census) in each of our facilities. We are therefore unable to commit to a specific bed availability as suggested in your proposal. Since we do not maintain the personnel information you indicated and in view of California privacy laws, we also would not be able to meet your personnel data request.

"Nonetheless, in the event of a national emergency involving massive civilian and/or military casualties, it is reasonable to anticipate that public hospitals and related public-sponsored service institutions would be called on to respond. We maintain our readiness to respond to any emergency need (fire, earthquake, etc.) through repeated testing of our institutional disaster plans. This principle is implicit in the disaster preparedness standards set forth by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals. Since each of our institutions constitutes a unique regional resource, we coordinate our disaster planning and testing efforts with appropriate regional bodies. Should you desire the participation of individual hospitals in a disaster plan exercise, we would suggest that you initially coordinate such an effort at the regional level.

"Please be assured that we will do everything possible to provide required health care services in the event of a national emergency."
